A 56-year-old female presented to the Orthopaedic clinic with pain on the medial aspect of both feet and ankles, aggravated by walking. Clinical examination of both feet showed swellings along the medial aspect of the ankles and feet with tenderness. She had severe planovalgus (flat) feet and was unable to stand tiptoed.

What is diagnosis?

What is the clinical sign (better appreciated on the right side)?

Answer: refer to page 155
